What will I learn on this course?

If you are interested in enrolling on this course, please ring us on 0161 253 5772.

This course will provide you with an understanding of the principles of promoting health and wellbeing and enable you to direct individuals towards further practical support in their efforts to attain a healthier lifestyle.

This qualification covers examples of inequalities in health within the UK, their possible causes and current approaches to tackling these inequalities. You will learn how effective communication can support health messages, how to promote improvements in the health and wellbeing of others and to understand the impact of behaviour change on improving an individual’s health and wellbeing.

This qualification is for existing or aspiring health champions and volunteers who wish to improve the health and wellbeing of people in their local community by motivating and encouraging them to make positive lifestyle choices.

By the end of the course, I will be able to:

- Know how inequalities in health may develop and what the current policies are for addressing these.
- Understand how effective communication can support health messages.
- Know how to promote improvements in health and wellbeing to individuals.
- Understand the impact of change on improving an individual’s health and wellbeing.

Additional information

Community workers, health advisors, pharmacy assistants and anyone in the wider public health workforce will benefit from this qualification. The qualification also provides a foundation for those considering a Health Trainer role. It is mapped to National Occupational Standards and functions of the Public Health Skills and Knowledge Framework (PHSKF) and Making Every Contact Count (MECC) guidelines.

Before you enrol on a course, advice and information is available to help you decide on the right course for you. Contact Learner Services on 0161 253 7501 or e-mail at learner.services@bury.gov.uk.
